

"or else thou art not Caesar's friend." Mind, Park!

they can be materially assisted by the Turkish land forces as well as their own, instead of in the Crime

As near as can be determined, the allied troops are in respect for Austria, will forbear from operating in the Principalities. A conference of the commissioners of the Austrian, French, English and Turkish forces is about to be held at Tschuschk, at which a general plan of operations will be made. The news from Constantinople is not important. The festival of the "Bairam" had commenced without disturbance. A further change was expected in the Turkish ministry. Mehmed Ali Pasha will doubtless soon be Grand Vizier of the Minister War, and a new de la Maison, was about to be created for Iskender Pasha. The Turks have made a considerable advance from Batum and St. Nicholas in Asia. A severe engagement took place on the 15th ult., which ended in the withdrawal of the Russians. Shamyl has greatly increased his forces, and threatens Tiflis. On the 21st inst., thirty English and French ships of war were discovered a few miles on Constantinople, and on the same day the Emperor and his family left St. Petersburg for Peterhof, from which place the movements of the Prince Albert is setting on foot a measure which, if properly carried out, will confer upon his name as much honor as the great Exhibition. Under his auspices an Educational Convention will shortly be held in London, at which most of the European States will be represented by delegates. The object of the Convention will be to devise a more uniform system of education for the young, to determine what shall be taught, in what manner instruction can best be im-ed, and at what age education should properly commence, leaving it of course to each Government to carry out the details of the system adopted. Notwithstanding the excellence of the public schools in England, France and Germany, education is still defective in the way of imparting education and of doing the teachers for the instruction of the young. What is already known should be more adapted to the youthful comprehension, and the system of instruction such that the pupils may learn from and not in spite of their teachers.

franciers, and a university education must of necessity be left to such Government. The Normal Schools of Austria—the first founded in Europe, are an honor to the empire. The State controls the affairs of education, but unfortunately too much power is left in the hands of the priests. Catholic schools alone are supported by the Government, Protestants receiving aid from the State, and barely being permitted to have their children instructed in evangelical doctrines. Not long ago it was strongly recommended to the master dictators in the general policy of Europe. That is the definition of the European necessity of the existence

To have their children instructed in evangelical doctrines. Not long ago we saw a Latin father for the chance in the Argemone, partly for political reasons, but principally on account of the clergy being more familiar with the former than with the latter. There is a surplus of religious instruction, such as it is, in the lower schools, but none whatever in those departments of the University unconnected with the study of the sciences. In the higher schools the subjects are Materialistic. During a long course of study at Vienna with the most eminent professors of Germany, I have never heard any allusion whatever to anything beyond the powers and forces of Nature.

Prof. Danzelsen of Philadelphia has just left for Prague, where he is to spend several days in Vienna. The learned Professor's name was already well known in Germany, and the attentions bestowed upon him by the saracens of Vienna were of the most gratifying character. Whatever political differences there may be between the politicians of the two countries, the learned men of Germany, and especially of Austria, have a high estimation of the scientific character, as well as of the attainments of our countrymen. The English are too jealous to give us due credit for our discoveries, and the French too uncosmopolitan. The Germans freely acknowledge our claims to the greatest scientific discovery of the century, namely, that of Etherisation. Until lately chloroform was in general use on the continent, even in Great Britain, but it will the continent as well as in Great Britain, when it was seen to be supplanted by a milder and less dangerous agent, namely, sulphuric ether, which was originally employed in Boston. A death occurred a short time since at the General Hospital from the use of chloroform. In a conversation a few evenings since, at the Imperial Institute, with Hofrath von Oppelzer and Haller—the former the most distinguished physician and the latter the first chemist of Austria—I found both of these eminent men in favor of the Boston method of chlorization.

Most of the Americans resident at Vienna celebrated the Fourth of July by partaking of a dinner at Streithurger's that would have done honor to the host of the St. Nicholas. Unfortunately, the stars and stripes were not allowed to wave by the side of the "black and yellow" of Austria; but what was wanting in external appearances was amply made up by good cheer and love of country. The Medical profession was represented by Drs. Williams of Cincinnati, Angel of Salem, Talbot of Boston, and Noyes of New-York.

The American Minister recently conducted Mr. Richmond from Belgrade to Trieste, whence the erratic clergyman proceeded to England to carry on at a distance the unequal contest with the Pope. A book may be expected from Mr. Jackson, Minister to the Court of Austria, left Vienna yesterday for Rome, which should have been sent to the printer long ago.

Imperial Palace affirm that the young Empress will give an heir to the House of Hapsburg in the course of a few months. If such be the case, we shall probably soon have a repetition of the recent fêtes and illuminations ordered from the Imperial Kautzel.

ITALIAN MOVEMENTS.
Correspondence of The N. Y. Tribune.
LONDON, Tuesday, July 11, 1854.
The Sardinian Police have discovered and confiscated several boxes of munitions at Voghera, on the frontier of Lombardy and Parma. They belonged to the Mazzinians, who had put them there for revolutionary purposes.
In the Romagna the Papal authorities are in the greatest alarm and embarrassment, fearing an insurrectionary outbreak. They have just arrested above fifty persons.

In Lombardy and Venice there prevails the greatest excitement among the people, owing to the new conscription ordered from Vienna. The conscripts are sent to Gallizia and Hungary.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

Latest European Markets.

Liverpool, July 12—A. M.
The transactions in our Cotton market this morning are moderate and prices rule in favor of the buyer, good middling Orleans was not counted on the market.

The imports during the past three days from the United States have been 12,560 bales.

The grain market continues heavy; the crops, however, look well, though backward. Weather cold.

Manchester Market.

Our market for both Goods and Yarns runs very flat, and the business doing is quite moderate. In Yarns a decline of 50d. has been submitted to since the departure of the Niagara.

CRUISE OF THE BRITISH STEAMER DE VASTATION.
From Our Own Correspondent.
ST. THOMAS, W. I., Monday, July 3, 1854.
The British war steamer Devastation of whose arrival here from Havana, in search of Russian privateers, I advised you in my last, still continues to cruise in these waters. She takes an occasional run out for a day or two, and the rest of the time lies at anchor in this port. The ostensible motive of her presence and movements here is still the suspicion or knowledge, as the case may be, of privateers hereabouts. In support of the hypothesis that this is the real intent of her mission is the fact that she is cruising, and that she does so with suspicious looking vessels, a very sharp look. Yesterday morning as a small boat without a masting, which proved to be the Dominican packet, was making for this harbor, the vessel was hailed, and her colors, which she did, but soon hauled them down again, and bore away, the rescue of the steamer brought her to with a gun. She had also been cruising under sail with her smoke-pipe taken down, and studiously disguised as to every appearance of her being a steamer. Last evening she sailed in company with the steam mail packet Magdalena, for Southampton, which she is to accompany three days on her voyage home. This she does in obedience to an order received from the British Government. This would seem to indicate the fear, amounting almost to assurance, that there are dangerous vessels, and even steamers in this region. These packets to Southampton are known to be always freighted with large amounts of specie from California and Mexico, which would make a rich prize in a privateering enterprise.

Contrary to all this, however, is the at least plausible suspicion that this matter of ransoms is a mere ruse, designed to mask, in a measure, other and more serious designs of the British Government, namely that the presence of the Therapsid, in contrast with the Canis, which also keeps near, is intended
